Overview

Andrea also represents clients in UDRP domain name disputes through ICANN. Her experience spans a range of industries, from global financial services to fashion and hospitality brands. Like a trademark “superhero,” she is passionate about protecting and defending creativity from startups building their brands from scratch, to global companies with longstanding, recognizable trademarks.

Before joining Fishman Stewart, Andrea was an associate at an intellectual property-focused law firm in Chicago. While in law school, she worked in-house alongside intellectual property counsel for a major Midwest-based fashion brand. She earned her J.D. from Loyola University of Chicago, where she received a CALI Award for Excellence in Loyola’s Intellectual Property Colloquium and was recognized as an Outstanding Intellectual Property Fellow.
